THE LIBRARIAN'S BLURB

By: Erin Booth,

Greetings and Salutations to one and all! I hope you are all having a wonderful summer.

First of all, kudos to the children who have been coming in daily and weekly for our 2008 Summer Reading Program. On Thursday, August 21st, I would like to reward our SRP readers with some extra-special prizes along with a certificate of completion. Here's hoping that next year, many more of you will join and keep reading throughout the summertime.

If you would like to join the daily "Reading Circle", which was formerly called the Story Hour, please do so. It is being held every day from 11am until Noon, and will continue through Friday, August 22nd. Again, I thank all current participants and your names will be announced in the August Newsletter to show our appreciation for your attendance.

Great news, by the way! On both August 8th and 13th, from 11am till Noon, Christina Nalen of the Ash Meadows National Wildlife Refuge will be giving a presentation along with fun crafts to do for anyone in attendance. Please come to the library and let's have some fun!

The second item that I would like to bring to your attention is that I will be conducting an Internet and computer course for all citizens over the age of 18 who reside in Amargosa Valley, commencing on August 25th. The space will be limited due to the small number of computers we have here in the library, but I will keep a sign-up sheet at the front desk and you may always call the library at 372-5340 if you would like to get on the list. The courses will be held from 6pm till 7pm on Mondays and Wednesdays for the moment and shall be ongoing as demand requires it to be. This is part of our library's adult programs pledge, which is part of our 5 year plan. Of course, this is completely free, and will help those of you who have had either limited or no experience with computers, including e-mail, browsing the internet for information and utilizing various computer programs as well.

The third item that I need to bring to the attention of everyone is that, although we certainly thank those of you who have turned in DVD's in great condition, we still have an issue with some of you turning them in condition that is less than satisfactory.

With that in mind, please strive to turn them in as good as condition as when you checked them out. We really don't want to have to start charging anyone for a DVD that is returned in less than satisfactory condition but may need to do so if this continues.

I would like to again thank my staff, Osvaldo Granados and Pat Booth-Durgin for their continued hard work and help. As well, I would like to say a great, big thank-you from all of us here at the Amargosa Valley library to Jean Weese, who has been volunteering her time in helping out with the inventory and other items. We appreciate you, Jean.

PLEASE LEAVE A MESSAGE FROM THIS CORNER OF THE WORLD

Attention all gardeners! It's that time. If you are long-time gardeners, or planted your first this year, you are now up to your ears in tomatoes, cucumbers, and summer squashes. The peas have faded and the beans are slowing down. And guess what? When the beans stop producing, it is time to get serious about your winter garden.

I always try to plant my spring garden so that the crops that end early are in good places for me to reuse that space for my winter garden. Sometimes, I do it better than others. So, in about a month, I'll ask Robert to till in some more composted manure and then I'll start planting. This year, I'll put the cabbage family where the peas were, the lettuce and spinach where the summer cabbage was, and the corn where the pole beans were. I am trying fall corn for the first time this year – a suggestion someone made at the class I taught this spring. I'll fill in with the root crops (beets, carrots and turnips) and my fall planting will be done. In about a month, I'll be harvesting lettuce again (I am still getting some from my spring crop). And the spinach will follow shortly. The Root crops will be ready in another month and in December, I'll have some cabbage. Broccoli and Brussels sprouts will be ready starting in January, along with the asparagus. This is a rebuilding year, so I'll be rebuilding some beds and moving my asparagus, artichokes, and herbs this fall too – a gardener's fun is never done. Happy gardening!

A Note on Mr. Misty: In May, I started giving Mr. Misty his treats on the table platform next to the storage trailer door. He always perched there when we went to feed and water the trailer girls, and rubbed on the window and wall. I just extend my arm out the door, with the treats in my hand, and set them down somewhere near his foot. He didn't seem threatened, since it was just my hand, not all of me. He even sniffed my hand, tickling me with his whiskers.

About the second week in June, as I was headed up the stairs of the trailer, he wasn't looking, so I ran my hand down his back and tail. He immediately went in to his defensive position: "if you do that again, I'll hit you!" pouring out of every cell. But, since I just kept going into the trailer and didn't even look at him (as far as he could see), he relaxed. Treats were delivered like normal.

The next day, I did it again. And the days after that. He became less defensive each day. On the fifth day, I paused and scratch at the base of his tail. That got a reaction – a positive one. He stopped moving and looked at me with surprise. Then I left for a week, but picked up again upon my return. A couple of days later, I also scratched him where his neck met his shoulders, and it was all downhill after that. I now scratch his head, his ears, his neck, his back, or anywhere I want, with one or both hands. In exchange, he touches my nose with his, rubs his forehead on mine and generally loves me back. He even lets Robert pet and scratch him now. The only problem: that table platform is the only place where we can love on him. When I ask if he wants a pet (or any time I'm in the area), he'll run and jump onto the platform, but every place else is off limits. I think it's a height thing, but who knows. He is, after all, a cat. Have a good August!

WAGE AND INVESTMENT DIVISION

June 27, 2008

Mr. Jeff Fontaine
Executive Director, Nevada Association of Counties
201 S. Roop, Street, Suite 101,
Carson City, Nevada 89701

Dear Mr. Jeff Fontaine:

I have some very important information for you and your constituents that is time sensitive. As a Senior Tax Consultant for Stakeholder Partnerships, Education & Communication (SPEC) of the Wage & Investment Operating Division of the Internal Revenue Service my colleagues and I are charged with providing education/outreach and free tax preparation in the State of Nevada. In January, Congress and President Bush approved and implemented the nation's Economic Stimulus Payment (ESP) program which provides economic stimulus payments to Americans across the country. Americans must file a tax return to actually receive these payments, and in many instances, people who have no regular filing requirement do not realize that they are entitled to these payments.

The IRS estimates that some 44,301 ESP returns have not yet been filed in your community SSAVA Mean of $2,513,391.00.

I am asking for your help in getting this ESP message out in your community using whatever channels you already have in place to reach your constituents. I can provide you with electronic information ready to print and talking points and will be glad to work with those in your office to help you in this effort. I stand ready to assist you and other community leaders in Nevada Counties to make sure this message gets out along with direction and resources available to file the tax returns.

IRS and local non-profit organizations and businesses throughout the Nevada have hundreds of free tax sites located in all the counties that offer a free tax preparation service during the normal tax season for people who may not be able to pay for tax preparation. As a result of the ESP program this year some of these sites have agreed to continue past their normal "tax season" efforts to prepare ESP returns free of charge, so people can get their tax return filed and receive their ESP payment.

Please help your constituents by helping us deliver this message and make sure every person entitled to this ESP payment receives it. Feel free to contact me, Rey Lopez, Telephone Number 702 868 5084 (my contact information is below), for any assistance you might need.

I want to thank you so much for your anticipated participation and let us hear from you!

Sincerely,

R. E. Lopez
